Laura Harjes

DVM, MS, DACVIM (SAIM)

Department of Internal Medicine
ACCESS | Los Angeles

Dr. Laura Harjes is new to Southern California but not new to traveling. She grew up in New York then attended veterinary school at St. George's University and North Carolina State University. Laura graduated summa cum laude then went on to complete an internship and residency at The Ohio State University.

During her residency, she completed a Master's degree in veterinary science, with a research focus on chronic kidney disease in dogs. In 2017, Laura successfully completed the requirements of the American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine and became a board-certified internist. She has a strong interest in nephrology, lower urinary diseases, and enteral nutrition.

Laura has joined ACCESS Specialty Animal Hospital, Los Angeles, to train as the Renal Medicine and Hemodialysis Fellow.

Outside of the hospital, she enjoys kayaking, cheering on the Buckeyes, attending concerts, volunteering, and exploring Los Angeles with her rescue dogs Levi and Shnook.
