

Jennifer Dasse Beveridge, DVM

ACCESS – Pasadena

Dr. Jennifer Dasse (Beveridge) was born and raised in Needham, Massachusetts. She graduated from Simmons College with a double major in biology and psychology before attending Western University of Health Sciences College of Veterinary Medicine. While completing a rotating small animal internship at Veterinary Medical and Surgical Group in Ventura, CA, Dr. Dasse developed a passion for emergency and critical care medicine.

She has continued to practice emergency and critical care medicine in the Southern California region ever since and she is incredibly excited to be joining ACCESS Pasadena Emergency and Critical Care Service. Her professional interests include trauma, shock and cardiac emergencies.

Outside of work, Dr. Dasse enjoys hiking, camping, and backpacking, as well as live music and crafts. She lives in Pasadena with her husband, young daughter, two dogs, one cat and a bearded dragon. She is happiest when surrounded by her beloved family and pets and exploring the forest or the desert.
