

Sara Herschler, DVM

ACCESS – Los Angeles

Dr. Sarah Herschler grew up in Redondo Beach, California. She attended University of California Davis, and earned her undergraduate degree in animal science and environmental toxicology.

She stayed at UC Davis for veterinary school and graduated in 2017. From there, she relocated to the east coast to complete a rotating small animal internship at Ocean State Veterinary Specialists in Rhode Island.

After completing her internship, she stayed at OSVS as an emergency clinician for a few years before returning to Los Angeles. She is very excited to be back home in LA and be a part of the ACCESS team. Her professional interests include toxicities, trauma, and endocrine emergencies.

In her free time, Dr. Herschler enjoys traveling, being outdoors, baking, and running marathons. She lives with 2 cats, Sydney and Buzz, and a very fluffy mutt named Winston.
